

Nota Biográfica

Rosemary Lokhorst

Rosemary Lokhorst is Executive Vice President of Corporate Development at Living PlanIT, responsible for effective management and strategic development of the company's strategic direction and partnerships as well as the continuous improvement of the Group's commitments to excellence.

With her team she develops the strategies that help the company grow and continually maintain profitability now and in the future, and brings on board the strategic partners necessary to execute on the business strategy. The Corporate Development team drives the execution of strategic deals, M&A, incubates new business ideas and develops strategic markets.

She joined Living PlanIT from Microsoft Corporation where she was responsible for the development of the services business for one of Microsoft's Global Accounts. She also led the "Women in Technology" initiative for Microsoft in Western Europe, which focused on retaining and developing the involvement of women in technical enterprises and professions.

Before Microsoft she served as Country CEO for a software start-up, after working in Sales and Business Development for Hewlett-Packard, Compaq and Siemens in Switzerland internationally for several years. She started her career in Software Development and Product management. Rosemary has a Bachelor's Degree in Hotel Management and a Masters in Computer Economics. She is actively involved in philanthropic organizations focused on entrepreneurship and enabling small businesses that show social responsibility. She also sits on the board of the Swiss ICT Women in Technology organization. She has more than 15 years of experience in ICT and Business Development. She is fluent in English, Dutch, and German and conversational in a few other languages.